

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief and one of the most dynamic characters ever to appear on the Washington horizon, is on the verge of letting the Blue Eagle fly its way alone.

General Johnson has made no definite decision on this, but it is not unlikely that within the near future he will step out of the Roosevelt administration. He expects to have a friendly but straight from-the-shoulder conference with his Chief at Hyde Park as soon as he gets out of the hospital. Upon this will hinge his decision. The chances are strong that he will step out.

There are four factors behind uncertainty of Johnson's future. The first three of these deal with the present economic situation which has every Administration leader with half an eye, heavily worried. The pick-up of the early summer months is not continuing. The stock market gambled on quick recovery, discounted inflation. Things have failed to come along as fast as everyone had expected.

Specifically Johnson's friends say three things are wrong:

1.—Banks have not been opened. Money has been tied up where people could not spend it. Sound banks have insisted on a high degree of liquidity. Money has been tight and there has been no appreciable stimulation of consumer buying power.

2.—Agricultural commodity prices have failed to keep pace with the industrial price advance spurred on by the NRA. Professor Tugwell, just back from the midwest, has made a private report to Secretary Wallace that the farm belt is angry, rebellious.

3.—Public Works, considered necessary to prime the pump of industry, have lagged.

Finally friends of both Johnson and Roosevelt say a wedge seems to have been driven in between them. Much of their old cordiality (Continued on Page 2)

TO PROTEST ROUTING OF KEY BUSES

As the result of the adoption of a motion made by Councilman W. W. Scott, at the council meeting last evening, the City of Richmond will fight the attempt of the East Bay Railway company in changing its system from cars to buses to route its buses to that the Stege and Pullman sections, will be left without means of transportation.

City Attorney T. M. Carlson and City Manager J. A. McVittie, were appointed to get in touch with the street car company, and vigorously protest, the carrying out of the proposed plan.

Scott brought the matter up by stating he understood the company intended to pull up the rails on Stege and Pullman Avenue up to Twenty-third and Macdonald. Buses would then run out San Pablo Avenue to Macdonald and thence on Macdonald to Twenty-third street.

"There is a large population in the Stege and Pullman districts," said Scott, "and most of them are not able to own automobiles. If transportation in these sections is done away with, it would mean that the people of Pullman would have to walk to Twenty-third and Macdonald to get a bus, and those in the Stege district would be compelled to walk to San Pablo Avenue. There are a number of industries in these sections, and this doing away with transportation might mean a decrease in their pay." (Continued on page 5)

RICHMOND MAN KILLS SELF

BRUTAL PARENT IS SLAIN BY SON

KILLS FATHER TO SAVE LIFE OF MOTHER

OAKLAND, Oct. 2.—A family argument reached a fatal climax tonight when Bert Blomont, 53, a telephone lineman, was shot and killed, allegedly by his son Bert Blomont Jr., 16.

The boy told police he shot to save his mother from the husband threatened to strike.

According to police, the older Blomont had been on a protracted drinking bout, and Mrs. Blomont, frantic with anxiety, set out this afternoon to find her husband. She located him, police say, in the apartment of a woman at Foot hill boulevard and Thirty-fifth avenue.

After an argument, she persuaded Blomont to get into the family automobile, and they went home. There the argument developed into a bitter quarrel. Young Blomont, in a bedroom adjoining, heard the voices raised in angry dispute and then he told police his mother screamed, "She cried out to my father not to hit her," the boy declared.

The youth took his .22 calibre rifle, police say, and rushed to the living room. His father was advancing toward Mrs. Blomont, fists upraised, according to young Blomont's story.

The boy fired one shot. It struck his father in the head, and the elder Blomont was pronounced dead on arrival at Highland Hospital. Police were holding the youth for further investigation, but no charge had been placed against him at a late hour.

100 Boys On Job Here As Junior Cops

One hundred and two Junior Traffic Patrol boys are on in Richmond beginning this morning, according to Willard Merrill, director of the patrols.

Eight controls are operating beginning this morning. Approximately 2500 boys and girls are escorted across dangerous crossings each day.

Chief of Police L. E. Jones has issued a warning that all motorists must obey traffic signals given by the juniors or they will be subject to arrest. Each Junior Patrolman has the authority to take numbers and to report them to police headquarters.

The question has been asked a number of times, Merrill said, as to whether or not a motorist must stop at the first or second stop sign. The answer is stop immediately when seeing any stop sign whatsoever. For the most part the first semaphores is located about 50 feet from the crossing where the children are.

The controls operate at three times during the day. At morning, at noon and at the time children return home from school. Special controls are arranged for the children leaving school at 2:05 and 2:30, Merrill stated.

The following schools now have Junior Traffic controls: Roosevelt, Longfellow, Lincoln, Nystrom, Grant, Woodrow Wilson and Washington.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—UP—A five second earthquake struck southern California today, centering in the Los Angeles metropolitan area where a major tremor spread death and destruction last March 10.

Described as a settling shock resulting from the original disaster, today's quake caused the death of an elderly woman from a heart attack and the injury of a dozen other persons from falling objects and flying glass.

Striking at 1:10 a. m., the tremor broke plate glass windows and crockery, shattered cornices and sent thousands running from their homes.

Long Beach, center of destruction in the March temblor, emerged with superficial damage to buildings unrepaired since then.

Mrs. Sophia Kanpow, 73, died shortly after the quake to a heart attack which physicians said was caused by fright and shock.

The cornice of the condemned Central Police station here fell to the pavement, crushing an automobile and injuring an unidentified woman occupant. Several persons were cut and bruised when they leaped through windows to safety.

City schools were ordered closed by the board of education while engineers inspected all buildings. Many structures were undergoing repairs from the March quake, with children attending classes in temporary wooden "tent schools."

All utilities reported their systems undamaged. The Southern California Telephone company reported the quake was felt in ten rooms from Santa Barbara, 100 miles north, to San Diego, 130 miles south. It extended as far inland as San Bernardino, 60 miles to the southeast.

Thousands of minor tremors have been recorded by the seismograph since March 10, Dr. Wood said. Of these about 300 were noticeable and today's was by far the most severe.

Kennel Club Public Dance This Evening

With balmy summer weather prevailing, El Cerrito Kennel club crowds enjoyed one of the best nights for thrills last evening. Major's Pride put over the biggest wallop by returning $192.50 on preferreds in the sixth event, but Silver Rock at $50 in the fourth and Tight Rock at $46 in the third were no mild sensations. Dual options kept up their skyrocketing, averaging over $45 per race all evening.

Tonight El Cerrito offers probably the classiest burlesque in many moons. Upset, world's champ, meets William Baker's Backfielder, just arrived from Baden, and a wonderful field, including Dasso, Sonny Crown, Delco and Tony Craig. Wolf Larson, William R. Burnett's big blue dog, makes his debut against Nifas Nehi, Spanish Lad and Clara May, among others in the eighth race, while a three-dog match composed of Olympiad, Midnight Dell and War Ridge is slated for the track championship in the ninth tonight. A free public dance winds up the big program tonight.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

ity has evaporated. The President has been inclined to think that Johnson overdid the ballyhoo stuff, should have spent his time in adopting codes. Coding of industry he considers to be the most important part of the recovery program.

As in any misunderstanding, there is a lot to be said on both sides.
TRAGEDY
Harry L. Hopkins, unemployed relief administrator, was an Army airplane to get to numerous out-of-town conferences he has to attend. The other day his ship encountered a terrific storm, was severely jostled, narrowly escaped crashing.

When he returned to his office his alarmed assistants congratulated him on his good fortune.
"Were you scared?" he was asked.
"Well, some, of course," Hopkins answered. "But what really did break my heart was the smashing of six avocado pears it was bringing home to Mrs. Hopkins, and also something else it was bringing home for myself."
SECRET COMMITMENT

There are several reasons for putting war debt negotiations in the hands of the Treasury rather than the State Department. But perhaps the most important reason is not being mentioned above a whisper.

That reason is the fact that during the Hoover administration the State Department told the Allied Powers that the U. S. A. would reduce war debts if they reduced German reparations. This happened at the famous Lausanne Conference. Officially the United States was not represented. Actually Allan Dulles, one-time counsel for the House of Morgan, at that time assistant to Norman Davis, was on the scene.

Despite repeated State Department denials, Sir John Simon, in an official note, reminded the United States of this pledge.

So if the State Department handled war debt discussions now, it would lay itself open to another British reminder. The Treasury, on the other hand, can proceed to ignore completely the Lausanne commitment.

MERRY-GO-ROUND
Oklahoma friends of former Secretary of War Pat Hurley have launched a quiet boomlet to run him for governor next year. They admit privately that his chances are slim right now, but say conditions may be radically different by 1934 and they want him to be on the ground floor if "things break right." Secretary of State Hull likes nothing better than canoeing—He has a trick way of holding the paddle in one hand, and slipping it noiselessly through the water like an Indian. Senate investigators of Coolidge—Hoover criminal prosecutions. They have the goods on several former high government officials and a number of wealthy ship owners.

"Holy Joe" McKee, New York majority candidate, recently had to take a big salary cut as a banker, McKee abandoned politics to become head of the Title Guarantee & Trust company at $50,000 a year—Recently he got notice of a healthy pay slice because of poor business—George Otis Smith, who recently gave up the chairmanship of the Federal Power Commission when asked to do so by President Roosevelt, is planning to withdraw completely from government service November 1. That date will complete 10 years employment in the government, and will enable Smith to retire on pension. There is no love lost between two of Hoover's staunch supporters—Pat Hurley and Bert Snell, Republican floor leader in the House—Professor Oliver M. W. Sprague, ex-adviser to the Bank of England, now adviser to the U. S. Treasury, has on his desk a small tin box marked "cake." In it, however, is not cake. It contains the fancy brand of smoking tobacco that Sprague learned to like in England—Whiskey distillers, contrary to the usual impression, have not yet organized their Washington lobby. Different companies have their own individual representatives, but there is a lot of conflict between them. When the unified dry forces start going again, liquor interests probably will have to unite. After all it was only the appointment of Will Hays as movie czar which saved that industry from government control.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the image—Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Exact substitute, 25¢ at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ROOSEVELT TELLS VETS HIS POSITION

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 2. (UP)—President Roosevelt served notice today on the nation's war veterans that they could not expect special privileges at the expense of the people.

Addressing the opening session of the American Legion convention in Chicago Stadium, Roosevelt struck out straight from the shoulder, outlining three cardinal principles in the administration's handling of the veteran problem.

More than 30,000 former soldiers heard him and it was clear and plain that he was not making any claim to be a hero, they liked the speech.

Although the major part of his remarks were devoted to an explanation of the veteran question as a part of his broad program of federal economy, the chief executive digressed long enough to sound an optimistic note on recovery and to wind up with an appeal for the Legion's cooperation.

He also appealed for national unity, asking that the spirit of class and sectionalism be wiped out in the interest of the country's welfare.

Explaining his veteran policy, Roosevelt said: "The first principle, following inevitably from the obligation of citizens to bear arms, is that the government has a responsibility for and toward those who suffered injury or contracted disease while serving in its defense."

"The second principle is that no person, because he wore a uniform, must thereafter be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all other citizens. The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he can demand and receive from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives. It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country, performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service had terminated, and not connected with that service."

"To these broad principles the time has come, I believe for us to add a third. There are many veterans of our wars to whom disability and sickness unconnected with war service has come. To them the federal government owes the application of the same rule which it has laid down for the relief of other cases of involuntary want or destitution."

"In other words, if the individual affected can afford to pay for his own treatment he cannot call on any form of government aid. If he has not the wherewithal to take care of himself, it is first of all the duty of his community to take care of him and next the duty of the state. Only if under these circumstances his own community and his own state are unable, after reasonable effort, to care for him then and only then should the federal government offer him hospitalization and care."

The Legionnaires listened with close attention as Mr. Roosevelt drove home his points from the platform. Only once did some one in the audience shout out an objection to the administration policy affecting them.

The President reviewed briefly his economic program to point out to the veterans the necessity for reduction of their compensation along with the huge slashes in other costs.

Speaking Of Sports

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 2. (UP)—British pluck and a crooning glee club from Tulane University, New Orleans, are credited with the introduction of football in tropical Guatemala City south of the Gulf of Mexico.

The glee club, on a tour of Latin American countries stopped at Guatemala City and gave the natives a musical treat. It seems however, that the natives were more interested in football than music, and they appealed to the song birds to stage an informal football game of the sort that produces America's mid-autumn madness each year.

The songsters agreed, each year the game was played. After that Guatemala went "griddy" in a big way. Shortly after this incident, Bill Penny, a British lad who played substitute guard on the Tulane team, arrived in Guatemala with a brand new sheepskin diploma under his arm, seeking opportunities. The tie, we wound up of a 25-7 score after spills, ball record, so they drafted him thrills and chills.

"We worked on the rudiments of the game for awhile and then I took a halfback post, imagine that! A few Rugby plays (the Tulane shift looked like a tango the way these boys did it), and we were ready to go after the championship of Guatemala City.

"The day of the game! Cheering crowds, mantillas and sombreroes and then the referee's whistle, seeking opportunities. The tie, we wound up of a 25-7 score after spills, ball record, so they drafted him thrills and chills.

HOLLYWOOD—UP—Maybe you can guess who she is—

She isn't comfortable in a hat-mock. She has never met Harry Long. She doesn't sing to herself when she works. She isn't afraid of spiders.

She doesn't like to see trees trimmed into "shapes." She isn't interested in child prodigies. She does not think some people are luckier than others.

Her clearest lighters generally don't work. She can't name the two senators from California. She does not eat cottage cheese. She doesn't own a Spanish shawl.

She hasn't any remedy for seasickness. She can't bake a cherry pie. She doesn't go out to dinner on the cook's night off. She doesn't like puns.

She has never bought a Mexican jumping bean. She doesn't know any Chinese words. She can't play checkers. She isn't afraid of thunderstorms. She doesn't listen to speeches. She has never missed a train.

Her clothes hangers don't match. She doesn't save old letters. She isn't superstitious about omens. She wouldn't like to watch a great surgeon operate. She isn't interested in the Gobi desert. She isn't left-handed and she can't dive.

Cuban Troops Kill Hundred In New Riots

HAVANA, Oct. 2.—UP—The 500 besieged former Cuban army officers surrendered at the National Hotel late today after a day of terror and heavy fighting.

The troops shot down 10 of the officers after they had flung a white flag of truce from the shell-pitted hotel.

A survey of morgues at mid-night showed that more than 100 persons were dead. Additional dead were being brought in steadily.

Some were soldiers and others appeared to be civilian, possibly victims of their own curiosity as they rushed to the scene of firing.

Hundreds of wounded were treated in hospitals, which were rapidly exhausting their medical supplies. Many of the wounded were expected to die.

Most of the dead were officers who had previously surrendered. The troops rushed into the National Hotel, firing as they came, despite the fact their former officers had quit shooting.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men
Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dark eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to get away from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away from the source of the trouble. Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The only mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No salomol (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to which men start take Carter's Little Liver Pills at once. Refuse "something just as good" as me. Give your liver a chance to get rid of the poison that is in your blood. For Carter's Little Liver Pills by mail, send what you ask for. $1.00, C.M. Co.

Every Constipated Person Should Try This

Stop taking pills, salts and other harsh physics that irritate and weaken the bowels. Such things merely force a movement without cleansing the whole system and upsets digestion, resulting in bad breath, headache, colic, tongue, yellow skin, sour stomach, and dizziness. After a good internal cleansing, the bowels, which also cleanse and regulate the liver, these symptoms usually disappear completely. Planing is made from the juices of extracts of harmless medicinal herbs—nature's own remedies. It is gentle, mildly, but most effectively. Large bottle at any good drug store.

Your Good HEALTH

Cross-Eyes in Children Can Usually Be Cured By Consistent Treatment

PERHAPS there is no natural facial defect that is more disfiguring and attracts more notice than cross-eyes. The face is the first thing you observe when you see a child.

A cross-eye gives you a sensation of shock and surprise that you cannot help showing. The child observes your feeling and resents it and soon commences to avoid meeting strangers.

IN THIS day and age there is no reasonable excuse for a child to grow up with cross-eyes. If you begin correction early and keep at it. In the first 3 to 6 months of a child's life it sees objects indistinctly. Its eyes roll around, generally without any effort at co-ordination and with very little control. Not much attention should be paid to this condition, unless one eye stays in one position constantly. This indicates that some of the muscles of the eye are paralyzed and should be given attention at once.

AFTER six months the eyes may be crossed only when the child is crying or out of humor or frightened. Perhaps one eye constantly turns to one side, usually in. Both or either of these conditions should receive attention at once, because they are very unlikely to outgrow them. Usually both eyes act together to focus on an object and the muscles of both eyes develop together. Occasionally one eye does not see as well as the other. One may be normal and the other short-sighted. In this case the normal eye will see objects and the other one does not. As a result the short-sighted eye will not be used, its muscles will atrophy and it will turn back and forth without regard to the object to be observed. Thus it gradually becomes useless and in such a case if an injury occurs to the good eye the child will be almost totally blind.

NOTHING can be done in a case of uneven eyes unless the error or errors of refraction are overcome by the use of glasses to correct the vision. It is sometimes even wise to shut off the good eye and compel the child to see with the poor eye for a time, so that the defective eye will develop from use and strengthen its muscles of movement and accommodation. This cannot be done any too early after the age of six or eight months.

ONLY an expert optician can prescribe for the case and glasses when used must be very carefully adjusted and changed as occasion arises. Very frequently after the glasses are worn for a time the eyes are strengthened so much that they will accommodate themselves without aid and the eyes remain straight. If they do not, much can be done by straining and exercise. Various lights are used, also stereoscopic pictures are arranged with numbers or attractive objects which the child will look at for a long time. This exercise gradually trains the eyes to focus and become normal.

SOMETIMES the muscles are so undeveloped that fusion will not take place. Early operation on these cases before they become fixed in a crossed position will give the eyes a chance to straighten. The operation is simple and harmless. Several operations may be necessary but they are well worth while if your child's eyes can be straightened and the child can be relieved of the thoughtless jeers and gibes of his playmates. Commence early and keep at it.

Oyster Stew an Art

There's a real art to making a good oyster stew. Most people make the mistake of cooking oysters too long. High temperatures make them tough and indigestible. They should always be cooked slowly over a low fire, separately from the milk. Scald the milk in a separate saucepan; while it is heating, let the oysters heat in their own liquor. As soon as the edges begin to curl, they are done and ready for seasoning.

To Clean Stove

A soft, clean cloth dipped in melted paraffin, will give your stove a smooth, attractive surface. Kerosene oil, on a soft lint-free cloth, may be used on the nickel. Afterward to secure a polish.

SUN-DRIED SKIN WILL BE AIDED BY OIL FACIAL

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THOSE of you who have rapturously pampered your bronzed skins during the summer months are now writing to me begging for magic formulas or miraculous treatments to whiten your skin sufficiently to make it appealing with the new fall costumes. It really is not such a difficult task if you were forerighted enough to keep your skin really in good condition during the summer tanning.

If your skin is seared, sallow and sun-dried, however, you had better combine some emergency softening treatments with your bleaching. For this purpose the hot oil facial gives promptest results. Alternate it with your bleaching treatments.

First, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a liquefying cleansing cream or cleansing oil to take away all of the grime and oil in your skin. Use two or three applications, removing the soiled cream with cleansing tissues and finally with towels wrung out of hot water.

During this manipulation, massage your skin gently with up and down movements to stimulate the action of the muscles and speed up the circulation. Now pour a fourth cup of olive oil or special facial oil into a saucer and set it in a pan of hot water to keep it quite warm. Lean back in a comfortable chair or lie down on a sofa with the oil, strips of gauze, pads of cotton, and a good astringent in easy reach.

Massage the warm oil into your face and throat, then dip short strips of gauze into the warm oil and smooth them over your skin. When you have finished, you should have a complete mask of oily gauze covering your skin. Over this pour a drop at a time, the remaining warm oil. Dip two cotton pads in very warm water or in witch hazel, and place over your eyelids. Now you can just sit and relax or take a nap, if you wish, for the longer the oily mask remains on your face the softer your skin will be.

When you feel that you really must terminate your beauty treatment, remove the bands of gauze and gently wipe away any remaining oil with tissues, and finish the treatment by patting the skin with a good astringent. Even the skin that is exceptionally dry and sensitive will be soothed, moist and happy after this treatment.

The day following the hot oil facial, take the bleaching treatment that I shall describe in my tomorrow's column. If you think that the hot oil facial is too much trouble, at least plan to use lots of softening creams or muscle oils after the bleaching mask and in between times.

ANSWER TO QUERY

Dear Miss Hunt: I am in mourning for a very dear member of the family. I suppose you will say that I shouldn't be thinking of beauty problems, but I am. I look ghastly in black and I wish you could tell me something to do so I will not be so depressing to myself and to others. Mrs. K.O.L.

Answer: I believe that you are entirely right. Black is certainly depressing with some skins and you should do all that you can to enliven your complexion and to relieve the monotony of the color whenever possible. This is especially important if there are children in the family whose sensitive natures will be shocked by ugliness of any kind.

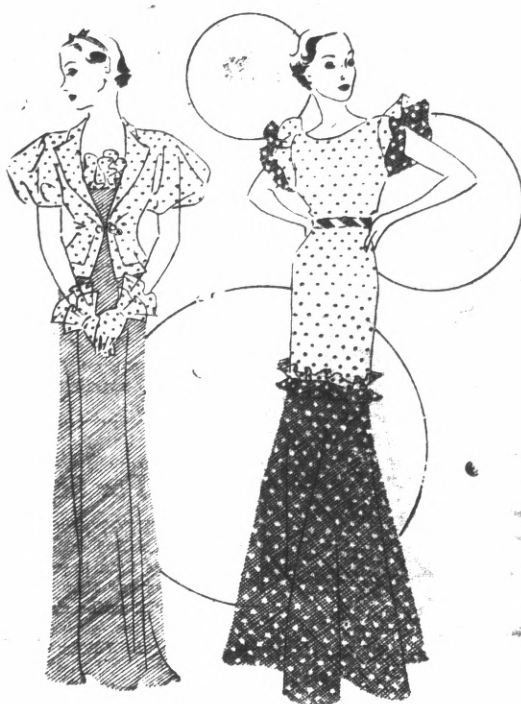

Use a powder that is slightly pinkish in tone—a creamy pink or rose beige that will give life and color to your skin. Use just the subtlest shading of rouge with a hint of orange in it and a lipstick that will match the shade of rouge. You needn't use enough to be obvious at all, but just enough to relieve the grayish skin tones brought out by black. And use just a whiff of green eye shadow and a touch of black mascara to make your eyes seem larger and brighter.

Air Dishcloth

These are the days when we must keep the dishcloth out in the open as much as possible or it will become sour and bad smelling. Hang it out in the air between meals and let it dry out thoroughly. Then it will not become unpleasant.

SPEAKING OF STYLE...

By IRENE VAIL

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild.

Organdies in patterned treatments were prominently featured during the late summer evenings at swank resorts. White organdie with yellow dots makes the little jacket of the costume at left. The gloves and flower of same material help to emphasize the simple buttercup chalky yellow crepe dress.

In the other frock, an effective contrast is obtained by reversing the ground color of printed white organdie, dotted in red. The twisted grosgrain belt repeats this color combination.

Tasty Dishes for Today

TAKE A 'COOK'S' TOUR OF FRANCE

By JUDITH WILSON

HAVE tales of the wonderful creations of the French cuisine, tempted you to visit this romantic land of gastronomic delights? If you cannot realize your ambition for travel, at least you can enjoy some of the dishes that are served in the world-famous old inns and bistrot hotels of the continent right at your own table.

Many of the ingredients that go into the making of the delectable dishes of France are to be found on your pantry shelf. If not, you can get them at almost any grocery store or delicatessen. One of the secrets of the subtle blending of flavors in the recipes, lies in the use of the finest wines, and the cooking and flavoring of many of the choicest dishes.

Of course you will have to make allowances for these things when you try the recipes in your own kitchen, but do not let this discourage you. There are substitutes that give good results. Cooking wines or white grape juice may be used successfully in any of the recipes. When you find a recipe for something "different" just try one of the following dishes on them.

Filet Sole Normandaise

Filet sole Normandaise is a less simple creation. Poach the filets in a buttered dish with a broth made by boiling the fish bones and trimmings in water, pouring off and adding an equal amount of white wine (white grape juice). When the fish is tender, arrange the filets in individual baking dishes and surround with poached oysters, shrimps and small mushrooms browned slightly in butter. Set in the oven to brown lightly.

Make a sauce with one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, and one cup white wine. Add one-half cup sweet cream and salt and pepper to season, and sliced mushrooms that have been simmered gently in butter. Pour this sauce over the fish and garnish with thin slices of truffles.

Crepes Suzette

Crepes suzette are the favorite dessert of Americans visiting France. To make them mix well three large tablespoons of flour, one egg, half a teaspoon of sugar, and a pinch of salt. Add a tablespoon of melted butter and as much milk as needed to make the mixture quite thin. Spread the batter very thin on a hot griddle and cook. Make a paste from one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon powdered sugar and a very little orange juice. Spread this over the cooked crepes. Fold them and sprinkle with more powdered sugar. The French surround the little cakes with brandy or a liqueur and set it afire.

Ragout of Mutton

A perfectly grand dish for a chilly evening is the ragout of mutton. Cut three pounds of

PRACTICAL AND INEXPENSIVE

The NRA notwithstanding, a young girl today must be practical in selecting a fall costume. This shirtwaist frock in a brown checked wool makes much of its nicely tailored knapsack pockets, even though what we have to put into these pockets may be limited.

New York—One discovers, as the season gets under way, that the two-piece idea is likely to develop into a big style item. Probably the fact that the two-piece dress may be on shirtwaist lines, yet appear to be in one, or that it may be on tunic lines, has a good deal to do with its popularity with women of many tastes. The successful shirtwaist dresses of the summer have been repeated in cooler fabrics, among which may be mentioned the new ribbed materials.

Sateens Practical
If you like to wear wash fabrics as late as possible, it may be well to look into the new sateens. Sateen, a favorite of the long ago, is developed in plain and printed effects and has become very popular for school frocks, and daytime dresses for the woman who is addicted to tubable clothes.

We also observe that women are collar conscious. The sailor collar, not usually in evidence after summer, remains and is done in interesting ways. The fence collar, a little straight band usually, is smart when the neckline is cut away from the base of the throat.

Many women addicted to scarfs prefer those that are separate rather than a part of the frock. Wool scarfs promise to be very big this fall and are worn either in twisted rope fashion and then knotted or in some version of the Ascot.

Hat-Scarfs Sets
Shops are playing up hat and scarf combinations, some of which have handbags to match. The hats are brimless and include a variety of beret and turban types, revealing Breton sailors, peaked effects and draped details.

The scarfs are original in shape, and include triangular ones, those wider on one side than the other and buttoning on the shoulder. You then take styles: Fringed and striped effects vary with the tweeds, some of which are nubbed.

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

It's a clever cook who knows her left-overs. The ability to make something out of practically nothing has long been a necessary talent in making both gods and men. Let's suppose that you open the refrigerator and find some left-over chicken or veal, perhaps a little of both. You mince the chicken or veal. If you have both, you put them together. You then take two shredded wheat biscuits from the pantry shelf, roll them fine and add to the meat. Presto! You have the basis of chicken hamburger. Two cups of minced meat calls for three-fourths cup of milk, a few drops of onion juice, salt and pepper to taste, and two tablespoons of butter. Fry in hot fat.

New salads are especially easy to invent for so many things can go into their making. Try new combinations of nuts and fruits and serve them ice cold with a fruit salad dressing in place of dessert.

You and Your Child

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

SOME day parents are going to wake up and will stop lecturing to their children. They will realize that time spent in re-creating with the children is wasted unless the time is well chosen. They will understand that the silent attitude on the part of the child, with head bent low, is not a listening one, but one of gloom. At the moment the parent is the cause for the mood, and the child can't love him for it, least of all be in sympathy with his aims. Also that is why, when we release him, he walks off whistling and with a lively step.

Lecturer vs. Listener
This morning a mother remarked: "I don't know what to do about Lillian. I talk to her and she sings, and she doesn't stop until I'm good and angry. Then, when she's quiet, her manner mocks me. Children today are without respect for their elders."

If this mother could be made to see Lillian's point of view, she would understand that Lillian's singing is to drown out her mother's voice. She is in no mood to listen. If she needs to be corrected at once, she should be punished. Talking, sermonizing that is, can do no good now. Her mind is closed and she can't be reasoned with.

As a rule, the lecture follows close on the heels of punishment, when the child is full of anger or resentment. It flares in his eyes when he looks at us. Yet this is the time we choose to influence him with talk.

The time to explain the reason for punishment is beforehand, so the child will know what he is being punished for. Also if we make it a practice to talk before punishing, it gives the child a chance to state his case.

Getting Together
Do not judge a child by his actions alone. Try to get an insight of his motives by talking matters over. Seek a time when he is most apt to be in a receptive frame of mind.

Most children are in a listening mood at bedtime. There is something about this cozy hour that invites confidential talks, and the wise mother will make the most of the opportunity. She knows that a hint of disapproval carries more weight now than a twenty-minute talk during the day, when the child's mind is in play. Now she has his full attention and his emotions want to be cradled by her too. It isn't hard to see a mother's point of view at bedtime.

Lord Craigavon, Ulster's Booster . . . A Soldier Who Fights for Peace

WHILE the names of Eamon de Valera and General Owen O'Duffy are constantly in the news from Ireland, a certain elderly Belfast Viscount, Lord Craigavon, first Prime Minister of Northern Ireland has a right to fame for his consistent efforts to keep Ulster, the Irish Northland out of trouble.

Keeping Ulster out of trouble has been a good part of the life work of Lord Craigavon. From the time when he was Captain Craig, M.P., with two medals and an honorary commission for fighting in the Boer War, on through his creation as a Baronet in 1918 and as a Viscount in 1927, Lord Craigavon has been loyal to King George of England and poison to the Irish Home Rulers.

With a damaged nose that just fails to brutalize his aristocratic features, standing over six feet tall and built to proportion, this 62-year-old soldier, long ago adopted the same vigorous and direct methods in politics which distinguished him in the field of battle. Probably no man in Irish politics at the time, has ever had a more equable temper, keener love of a joke, or a sense of fair play, than this pugilistic blueblood.

Before the World War, when the Ulster movement came into robust being, Sir Edward Carson was credited as its inspirer, but no one could have long remained in doubt as to who its actual organizer and mold was, Lord Craigavon was a genius in organizing. What had to be done, he did, even if it meant making an armed fortress of his home, as was actually the case in the 1914 era of Ulsterism.

As a member of Parliament, the then Capt. James Craig could well afford to be blunt of speech, for he was wealthy in his own right from his father's distilling interests. Independent and cocky as a terrier, he once shocked a conservative committee in the House of Commons by smoking a battered briar pipe at a meeting. He loved liberty of action as much as he hated routine, but he was a conformist enough to put his pipe away when others objected to his smoking.

Lord Craigavon's speeches, whether delivered as captain, baronet, viscount, financial secretary to the Admiralty or prime minister have never been subtle or brilliant. They are more apt to have been halting and disjointed. Many persons still remember the impassioned "bull" he made when, speaking from the depths of his convictions, as was his usual habit, he roared: "The naked sword is drawn for the fight, and gentlemen, never again will the black smoke of Nationalist tar barrels drift on the breeze, but it is to darken the hearts of Englishmen."

More penetrating than his mangled metaphor is Lord Craigavon's sincerity. Mingled with it is the perfect, common touch that he has lost. In the Boer War this young officer of the North Ireland Yeomanry supplemented the rations of his men with money from his own pocket. He can and does still, converse with farmers, fishermen and flunkies in the broad Ulster dialect and is an enthusiastic champion of the Home Rule or home-law booster, or Rotarian in America.

An aristocrat by blood and by title, but by his own admission, a traveling salesman when the chance arises, Lord Craigavon will sell Ulster eggs or linen or ships; will caution hotel proprietors to treat tourists nicely so that they will visit again; will do hand all prominent visitors or do any other job to make his home province one which will be remembered.

MODES AND MANNERS

By TALBOT LAKE

QUESTION: "A neighbor has asked me to 'drop around some evening.' I am lonely and should like to take advantage of this invitation. How should I go about it?"—Mrs. L. P.

ANSWER: Telephone before you call. Or next time you meet, ask your neighbor when it would be convenient to call. In this way you would avoid the embarrassment of arriving unexpectedly and when you may not be wanted.

QUESTION: "Is it correct to say 'I'm pleased to meet you' when acknowledging an introduction?"—Fanny G.

ANSWER: "I'm very glad to meet you" is preferable. And "How do you do?" is still better.

QUESTION: "When the proprietor of a beauty parlor cuts one's hair, is it preferable to say 'How do you do?' or 'Hello'?"—Patricia L.

ANSWER: One may tip the proprietor if she likes, and as a rule he raises no objection, but it isn't necessary.

MODERN GIRLS SEEK ROMANCE ON A BICYCLE

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

HAS she started teasing for a bicycle? Probably because that mysterious "they" that women are always quoting, as doing this or wearing thus and so, are most certainly bicycling again. Not from necessity, or because of exercise even, but because it is smart, and partly because the fragrance of other days is adding to its lure.

MANY a stout, middle-aged matron of today knew romance and made trips through Lovers' Lane on a bicycle built for two, or tandem, which they tell me is also daring to show its face again, and in Washington of all places. There was romance for you.

THIS is what The Nation has to say in reminiscent vein, and when a serious-minded publication such as this turns back its thoughts to the days—not to mention evenings—when one looked sweet upon the seat of a bicycle built for two, one must take notice.

"WHAT a brave cavalcade it was! There were Saturday-day-and-Sunday drivers then just as there are (Saturday-and-Sunday) drivers nowadays. The smooth streets of the cities and the fairly passable roads into the country hummed and whirled with wheels; riders went forth alone, in couples, or in groups and companies; there were thousands of bicycle clubs—a few still survive—with all the glamour and prestige of golf or yacht clubs today. Bicycling was a far more sociable and gregarious sport than automobilizing ever has been, or can be. Women fell in love at almost to the same extent as men, and the craze for speed on the roads—say fifteen frightful miles an hour!—was as rampant then as today, though not as dangerous."

"THE tandem wheel was the ne plus ultra of the bicycle age. There was romance in it, the Gay Nineties—little as the younger generation of today believes it."

"YES, it was a brave cavalcade, the bicycle parade of the Gay Nineties—and almost a decade after. Can it come back—in any other way, that is, than a sporadic, partial, and temporary way?"

IT BEGINS to look as though it could. At the moment it is the young people who are demanding it. They are just as restless as before long those who still have the illusion of youth will be stealing a ride under cover of darkness, for the old lure is still there.

IN PALM BEACH the bicycle never went out. It was accepted, as it is in Bermuda, as a very logical and sensible means of transportation, no more than the only feasible one in some localities. Incidentally, women mount their wheels wearing mufflers, or anything they happen to be wearing, proving that it is no more necessary to go back to the fearful and awful clothes of the bicycle era, bloomers and so on, any more than it is to the linen coats and goggles of the early age of the automobile.

AUTOMOBILES and bicycles do not mix any better than gasoline and alcohol, but there is a sufficient demand for bicycles and have no fear that new Lovers' Lanes will be discovered.

Did You Know?

When waxed floors become dark and stained, wash with gasoline, even discolorations made by furniture legs may be removed. Then wash with strong soap. Then wash with strong soap. Then wash with strong soap. This can only be done in warm weather when you have no fires in the house.

If you are looking for a quick prepared dinner, visit the ready-to-serve meat counter at your favorite delicatessen. You will be surprised at the endless variety of meats awaiting your approval.

Rub a chicken well inside with a little oil, and then before putting it on to cook. This will make the meat white, juicy and tender.

OWNERS WILL BE FORCED TO REMOVE WEEDS

An ordinance making it compulsory for property owners on improved rubbish and weeds from the parkway, passed its first reading at the meeting of the El Cerrito council Monday night.

The ordinance provides that on notice from the street superintendent, the property owner must clean the parkway within ten days, or the city will have the work done and assess the cost against the property.

Applications of Joseph Rossi to operate a bingo game at the El Cerrito Athletic club and of Frank J. Crowley to operate a game at 419 San Pablo avenue was referred to City Attorney T. H. DeLap.

First reading of an ordinance changing the name of Santa Fe avenue to Colusa avenue, was passed by the council. Part of the street is now named Santa Fe and part Colusa.

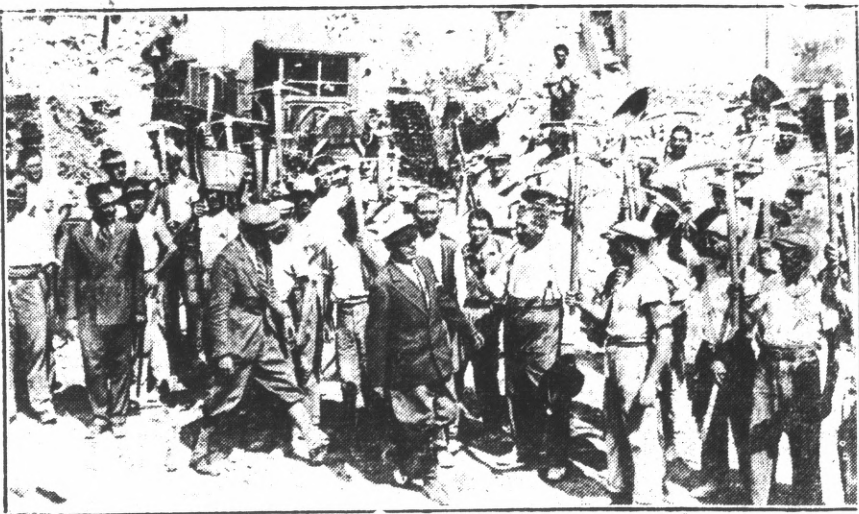

Councilman Hans M. Nissen reported that a committee consisting of City Attorney T. H. DeLap, City Engineer H. D. Chapman and himself, had conferred with the officials of the Key System on the extension of the bus service from Fairmont and Colusa avenues to San Pablo avenue. The council would be notified of their decision later.

City Attorney T. H. DeLap informed the council that P. St. Sure of the Key System had told him that the company intend to remove the tracks on Potrero avenue and would repave the street with same type of pavement as is now on the street.

On the recommendation of the city attorney, the council denied the application of the McCutcheon Transportation Co. for a permit to erect a 3100 gallon tank for the storage of fuel.

DeLap said that the construction of the tank above ground violated the city ordinance which required the tank to be placed at least three feet underground.

An ordinance changing the penalty on delinquent taxes passed its first reading. Under the new ordinance a property owner may pay up his delinquent taxes by paying all back taxes and seven per cent interest without further penalties, or by paying the current taxes and one-tenth of the delinquent taxes each year with interest at seven per cent on the delinquent balance.

PEACH PACKER QUOTA UPHELD BY U.S. COURT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2—UP—The Federal government's right to regulate the California peach canning industry under the Agricultural Adjustment Act was upheld today in a decision by Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

Judge St. Sure granted the government a permanent injunction against the Calistan Packers, Inc., Modesto, and ordered the company thrown into receivership to permit government distribution of an allegedly excessive pack.

Under the peach packing marketing agreement negotiated through the A. A. A. the Calistan concern was allocated 77,000 cases of the 10,000,000 case pack. The company admitted ychoso to disregard the allotment and packed 70,000 additional cases. It attacked the right of the A. A. A. to distribute the canning quotas and challenged the constitutionality of the congressional act.

The decision made the federal jurist held that the agricultural administration had jurisdiction, that the court had the same jurisdiction granted it by Congress, and that the company had exceeded the law.

The 70,000 cases alleged as the "back" will be disposed of by the Central Peach Control committee. The company will be paid for its expenses. The balance probably will be turned into the control fund for reimbursement to growers for unharvested peaches.

"The decision is a sweeping victory for the government's recovery program," said James L. Fly, special representative from Washington who pleaded the government's case.

Second Plant of Ford Company To Be Closed

DETROIT, Oct. 2—UP—Ford Motor company officials tonight ordered heads of the Edgewater, N. J. assembly plant to close down, if the strike there was interfering with orderly production.

Ford and other officials here are watching the strike situation closely. They expressed hope that the closing order would not be necessary, but were disturbed over reports of violence at the plant.

The motor maker regards the strike there at Chester, Pa., as inspired by agitators taking advantage of the slight production. And of his differences with the NRA.

The Chester plant was closed last week.

The company is discharging workers as fast as they join ranks of the strikers and intend to employ others to take their places as soon as the trouble ends.

Scout Band Invited To NRA Parade

The Boy Scout Band has been asked to play in the big NRA parade in Berkeley Friday it was announced last night by A. J. McNary, chairman of the band committee.

For several weeks now the band under the direction of A. A. Hart has been rehearsing every week to fill engagements during the winter months.

The invitation to play in Berkeley came as a surprise to the boys. It was decided that they should be allowed to go and a large bus will call for the boys Friday evening at 6:30 in front of the Odd Fellow's hall on Tenth street.

It is known that the parade will be the largest that Berkeley has probably ever seen and great preparation is being made for the event.

rolls, which means that the business men of Richmond would suffer also.

"During the twenty odd years the street car company has operated in this city, Richmond has been very kind to it, fair treatment has always been accorded, and it seems to me that Richmond is entitled to the same kind of treatment in return."

"I am strongly opposed to the proposed action of the street car company and I think this council should go on record protesting against such move as is contemplated. Personally I think the buses are far superior to the cars, but we do not want to accept a service that takes care of one portion of the city to the detriment of other sections."

Scott then made his motion of protest, which was adopted by unanimous vote of the council. Mayor Walter Johnson stated that after the information had been made public a number of residents of the Stege and Pullman sections, had protested to him. He had got in communication with Attorney St. Sure and the latter had promised to take the matter up with the transportation committee of the street car company.

work and went to the house. He did not find his father there.

A premonition that something had happened swept over the son when he found on his dresser a tin "strong box," which he knew his father had in his possession, but which he had never seen. In the box were found family papers, records, deeds, etc.

Alarmed, young Labourdette started to search through the house for his father. Unable to find him, he returned to the Winter's store at Eleventh and Macdonald and informed his employer of what had transpired. Winters then accompanied him back to the house. They renewed their search and then finally went to the basement.

They found the body in a vacant room. Labourdette was seated in a chair. From all indications he had placed the muzzle of the gun against his throat and pulled the trigger. The bullet emerged from the top of his skull and struck the ceiling.

From a preliminary investigation police disclosed that the man had probably shot himself at about noon yesterday. The fact that the shooting took place in a tightly closed room, plus usual noonday noises, prevented neighbors from hearing the sound of the explosion.

The body was taken to the Wilson and Kratzers chapel where funeral services are pending. Labourdette leaves his son, John, of Richmond; his wife, Mary, of Chowchilla; a daughter, Mrs. Rex Green of Millbrae; another daughter, Mrs. L. R. Moore, of Fresno and two unmarried daughters, Helen and Dorothy, both of Chowchilla. He also leaves two brothers, Joseph and Bernard, of San Francisco.

Cotton Picker Strike Grows In California

TULARE, Oct. 2—UP—Extension of a strike of cotton pickers to include the entire San Joaquin Valley district were expressed tonight by Pat Chambers, union organizer who directed peach pickers' walkouts in the valley. Chambers said 4,000 cotton field workers will join the 1,000 men already on strike in demands for a higher wage scale. The present scale is 60 cents per 100 pounds; the 1932 scale was 40 cents; and the pickers, through Chambers, demand $1.00.

about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish—are blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way.

Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better. Chesterfields satisfy—we ask you to try them.
